Representative Experience

Construction

Chris represents businesses and individuals in construction-related matters and has extensive experience in complex, multi-party construction litigation cases. He regularly counsels and represents design professionals, contractors and owners in contract disputes, professional liability matters, defective construction claims, construction liens and surety bond claims. He provides advice at all phases of the construction process, from initial design to post-completion disputes, on both public and private projects. If litigation becomes necessary, Chris has successfully defended and prosecuted numerous cases at trial, arbitration and mediation.

Construction Experience

- ▶ Prepared and negotiated construction contracts on numerous large-scale complex private and public projects
- ▶ Obtained $1.7 million trial verdict for subcontractor in multi-party construction matter involving construction performance issues and defective products
