As recall volumes continue at over 50 million affected vehicles per year and news of global recalls dominate the headlines, the industry continues to wonder what the future will hold. In an environment of change and upheaval, how do we know what the right path is?

Hear from Neil Steinkamp of Stout Risius Ross as he discusses the latest data, trends and observations on automotive recalls during the 4th Annual Automotive Warranty & Recall Symposium. Topics will include:

- Overall trends from 2016
- Unprecedented analysis of international recall data
- Enhanced industry analysis of completion rates
- Insights on defects & risks associated with the latest safety technologies
- How software/technology is changing how we think about recall risk
- The financial impact of recall – lessons from OEMs and suppliers
- How defect data can give us opportunities to shape the future
